RELIGIOUS SERVICES YESTERDAY

REV. MR. DINWIDDIE SPEAKS ON THE ANTI-SALOON SUBJECT.

The Three Objects of the League are to Agitate, to Secure Legislation and to Enforce present Laws—Mr. Newton, the New Baptist Pastor, Began His Work Yesterday.

Rev. Mr. Dinwiddie, secretary of the American Anti-Saloon League, as announced in the papers last week, made an address in the court house yesterday afternoon. He was greeted by a considerable audience, and spoke for about an hour, giving an outline of the work done by the organization which he represents. The League was organized at Washington in 1895, and has now been organized in a large number of States. The oldest State auxilliary is in Ohio, from which State Mr. Dinwiddie comes.

The objects of the League, Mr. Dinwiddie said, are threefold. The first object is agitation. It is to keep up a fight against the saloons, to inform the people of what the enemy is doing and to fire the hearts of the Christian citizens of the country to fight the traffic. The League is absolutely non denominational. It desires to arouse the church members of all denominations and the other morally-inclined people to a sense of the importance of the fight. The second object is to maintain all the present temperance legislation, and as occasion makes opportune, to increase the number of laws in favor of temperance. The next object in to see that the present laws are enforced. The average lawmaker, the speaker said, would prefer to be on the moral side of questions if he knew it was safe to do so. The League proposes to show that it is not only dangerous for legislators to take the wrong side, but that it is safe to take the right side. The Leagues of the different States provide information as to how different members vote, and then seek to arouse their members to defeat the men who side with saloons. These defeats are accomplished at the primaries.

Dr. S. B. Turrentine presided at the court house meeting. Mr. Dinwiddie said that he was here to look over the field in North Carolina with a view to establishing a State League. The first thing will be, in case it is decided to create an auxilliary League, to get a State superintendent and a board of directors. The League is absolutely a business institution, and doesn't consider its work begun until it has a live man on the field giving all his time to the work. Subscriptions were taken for the cause, payable in monthly installments.

In the evening Rev. Mr. Dinwiddie spoke in the Westminster Presbyterian church, before the congregation of Westminster, Centenary and Grace churches.

Rev. W. C. Newton, the new pastor of the West Washington Street Baptist church, preached his first two sermons as pastor yesterday. He was listened to by large congregations.

Dr. Egbert Smith yesterday read out names of sixty-nine persons who had joined the First Presbyterian church during the last quarter. A considerable portion of them were converts in the meeting recently closed in that church.

W. C. Stronach Dead.

Raleigh Cor. Charlotte Observer.

William Carter Stronach, one of Raleigh's best known and most useful men, died at 1 o'clock this afternoon, of cancer. He was born here in 1845. For nearly a year he had been sick. During the past six days he has been unconscious. He was first sergeant major when he was shot through the right lung when he was shot through the right lung at Reams' Station. He was in MacRae's brigade, Heth's division, A. P. Hill's corps. He was one of the founders of the Soldier's Home here twelve years ago. He had always been chairman of its board of managers, and had labored unceasingly for its interests. His father came here from Scotland as stonecutter on the present capitol. He leaves two brohers, two daughters and four sons.

Book Clubs Entertained.

An entertainment which verified Mrs. George W. Whitsett's reputation as an ideal hostess, was given by her Friday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock to the members of the Jarvanese and Friday Afternoon Book Clubs. It was a four leaf clover hunt, and the fun consisted in finding the leaves, which were secreted in every available hiding place.

Prizes were awarded to the one who found the greatest number of leaves, and also to the one whose numbers on the back of each leaf made he largest aggregate. Mrs. J. Murchison received one prize, a lovely book mark, and Miss Mabel Hill the other, which was an extremely cute and appropriate one—a hand painted clover leaf, prettily framed.

Delicious refresments were served in the dinning room, which was particularly attractive with its polished table covered with exquisite battenburg lace pieces, and its decoration of cut flowers and potted plants.

Mrs. Whitsett's guests were: Mesdames. Peter Yates Carrie Yates, Cone, Julian Price, Copeland, Guthery, C. W. Banner, Leak, Remiker, Stone, Trogdon, Murchison, Boen, Turner, Goolsby, and Misses Bryant, Pety, McDonald, Goolsby, Hill, Cator, and Applewhite.

The Reduced Tax.

Raleigh Times.

The reduction of the tax on manufactured tobacco is a distinct victory for Col. John S. Cunningham. Col. Cunningham has labored early and late for this exorbitant tax, and at last success has crowned his efforts. As chairman of the State Board of Agriculture he has made a most efficient and capable officer, and the excellent business management of the department is due in some degree to his labors. He is the largest tobacco planter in the United States, and the president of the North Carolina obacco Growers Association. He has represented the tobacco Planters and manufacturers of the South in the tax reduction; and they owe him a debt of gratitude.

Holton's Pictures.

Saturday night crowds of people were entertained in front of Holton's drug store by large pictures cast over the front of the store advertising all kinds of remedies, Holton's preparations and other pictures not advertisements. They were thrown from a lantern located in the opposite building, and the crowd that watched them looked like a gathering watching election returns.

Caught Retailing.

Rufus Blackwell, colored, was caught retailing yesterday and will be given a hearing this afternoon. The case against him is conclusive and he will probably serve a term on the county roads.

Miss Michaux Sick.

Dr. E. R. Michaux left last night for Talladega, Ala., called there by the serious illness of his sister, Miss Annie, who is visiting relatives there. It is thought that she has typhoid fever.

Death of Mrs. Goldston.

News was received here yesterday of the death, at her home in Cincinnati, of Mrs. A. D. Goldston. She was a sister of Messrs. S. and M. Shiffman, of this city. Mr. M. Schiffman left at noon yesterday for Cincinnati to attend the funeral.

A Bit Skeptical.

Raleigh Times.

The discovery of oil at King's Mountain will be believed when the Standard Oil trust gets down there and looks into it. The discovery of vast deposits of tin there, and the more recent announcement that large bodies of coal exist in the vicinity are calculated to make people a little skeptical.

INAUGURATION DAY

MOST MAGNIFICENT SPECTACLE

THE WEATHER WAS THE MOST PERFECT IN EIGHTY-THREE YEARS.

Pennsylvania Avenue was a Scene of Martial and Civic Splendor—Military Personages and Governors of States Lead the Procession.

By wire to The Telegram.

Washington, Mrch 4.—Willaim McKinley was today inaugurated President of the United States for the second time. The day was perfect, and the weather the finest which has prevailed on any like occassion since President Monroe took the oath of office on the east portico of the capitol eighty-three years ago. The city was filled with an enthusiastic crowd reaching a number estimated at a half million of people, from all the States of the Union. Pennsylvania avenue early echoed with the blare of drums and the crash of brass, while detachments of troops from many States marched hither and thither to take their respective positions in the procession.

The most prominent of these were the West Pointers whose perfect marching elicited the warmest admiration. Troops were present from the States of Ohio, New York, Georgia, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Maine to Maryland, and Pennsylvania. The latter state has the largest number in line. It is estimated that her quota numbered nine thousand. The oldest military organization in the United States, the "German Fusileers" of South Carolina, was a participant.

From the White House to the Senate esplanade, Pennsylvania avenue presented a spectacle of colors of great chromatic splendor and an array of military strength. The display of war trappings was never before seen in this country. It is estimated that the pageant cost four millions of dollars, counting therein money spent by citizens attending from even the most distant parts of the Union.

The whole number of troops was estimated at 20,000. There were forty military bands in the procession. Among the distinguished persons were Lieutenant-General Miles, Major-General Brooke, Brigadier-General Wheeler, and sixteen other officers at the head of troops of the regular army. Admiral Dewey and an imposing staff headed the naval parade. Twelve Governors, from as many States, each headed a large body of troops.

A division of the G. A. R. marched with Generals Howard and Sickles at their heads. Major-General Green of the volunteer force was grand marshal for the day. The following Governors headed troops from their respective States: Odell of New York; Stone of Pennsylvania; Voorhees of New Jersey; Runn of Delaware; McLean of Connecticut; McMilian of Tennesse; Smith of Maryland; Nash of Ohio; Yates of Illinois; Bliss of Michigan; Shaw of Iowa; Dietrich of Nebraska, Richards of Wyoming.

The procession was formed in two grand divisions. The military, with General Brooke and the grand marshal with one, and the civic division composing the other with political clubs from Pittsburg, New York, Columbus, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Chicago, Minneapolis, Toledo, Wilmington, Newark, Cincinnati, Syracuse, St. Louis, Baltimore, Lancaster, Penna, Elizabeth, N. J., Oklahoma, St. Paul, with student bodies from dozens of institutions.

The procession movedpromptly from the Capitol at 1:30. President McKinley took the oath of office and began the delivery of his inaugural address.

Vice President Roosevelt took the oath at noon in the Senate chamber, in the presence of the President and Cabinet. Twenty-eight new Senators were sworn in.

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

"When we assembled here the fourth of March 1897, there was great anxiety in regard to our currency and credit. None now exists. Then our treasury receipts were inadequate to meet our obligations. Now they are sufficient for all public needs and we have a surplus instead of a deficit Then I felt constrained to convene Congress in extraordinary session to devise revenues to meet the ordinary expenses of the government. Now we have the satisfaction to announce that the Congress just closed has reduced taxation one million dollars. Then there was a deep solicitude because of long depression in the manufacturing, mining, agricultural and mercantile industries, and a consequent depression of the laboring population. Now every avenue of production is crowded with activity, labor is well employed and our products find good markets at home and abroad."

Continuing, the President urged the necessity for still further enlarging the foreign markets by carefully cultivating and promoting reciprocal trade agreement by sound business methods and strict economy in the national administration and legislation. He referred to the formal result of the war with Spain and said that it imposed obligations which we cannot escape and which we cannothfsufferigk cape and which it would be dishonorable to seek to escape.

Cuba being our near neighbor we we must remain close friends. "Principles which led to our intervention require that the fundamental law upon which our government rests should be adapted to secure a government capable of performing the duties and discharging the functions of a separate nation, of observing its international obligations, protecting life, and property and insuring order, safety and liberty, and conforming to the established and historical policy of the United States in its relations to Cuba. In regard to the Philippines he said we would continue to make the same efforts to restore order as had been begun.

KILLED MOTHER AND WIFE

Shocking Crime of a Father and Son in Atlanta.

Birmingham, Ala., March 3.—Ten days ago, Mrs. Charles A. Foote, wife of a prominent contractor, at Bessemer, was found dead in the kitchen of her home with her head almost severed. A bloody table knife lay under her body and there was evidence of a terrible struggle. The theory of suicide was advanced by some, and of murder by others. There was no apparent motive for murder, as the house had not been robbed and members of the family said that it looked like suicide. The coroner's jury began an investigation, the result of which was not made public until Saturday last, when Chas. A. Foote, the husband was arrested as an accessory to the murder of Mrs. Foote.

At the same time a telegram was sent to Atlanta ordering the arrest of Arthur Foote, 18 year old son of the woman. He is in jail in Atlanta for the crime. The woman's life was insured for $2,000, two policies having been recently taken out, it is said. The sheriff refused to allow any one to see the elder Foote, but it is known that he denies the crime. The arrests have created a sensation, owing to the prominence of the parties and the shocking nature of the crime.

Some of Them.

Salisbury Sun.

We desire to add to the remarks of The Telegram that may be it is just as well that the Legislature has so far done little. Too much legislation is worse than too little, and the members might have passed some hurtful laws. The State needs a good school law, a better election law, and a new tax law. These might have been passed and then, with a few necessary appropriations, the General Assembly might have adjourned and each Representative and Senator made a name for himself.

Mr. R. M. Crawford, of the Greensboro National Bank, is confined to his room with sickness.

Important Legislation.

Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

Raleigh, Marcn 4.—The House passed the bill creating ten congressional districts as reported by the committee.

The Senate passed the bill giving the State Superintendent of Public Instruction three assistants at $1,500 each to visit schools and push educational work.

Prompt Settlement.

Mr. J. T. Bass, agent here for the Life Insurance Company of Virginia, this morning received a check to cover a policy on the life of little Earnest Boone, whose death was recorded in these columns last week. The check was for $30 and premiums on the policy had been paid to the amount of only fifty cents.

Three Century Man Dead.

Mr. Green Kidd, whose home was near High Point, and who had lived in three centuries, died yesterday morning. He was one hundred and one years old, and had enjoyed good health until the last few years. He came to High Point immediately after the war. A biography and cut of Mr. Kidd appeared in The Telegram some time ago.

Reece and Elam Dissolve.

Messrs. Reece and Elam, publishers of The Daily Record, and job printers, who have been in business together in this city for years, have dissolved copartnership by mutual consent. Mrs. J. M. Reece has purchased Mr. Elam's interest in the business and the firm will be J. M. Reece & Co. Mr. Elam will remain with the business as heretofore.

Sick Again

Mr. Edney Ridge, who has suffered with four previous attacks of appendicitis, had another attack Saturday. He had been at Oak Ridge some time since the former one, but found it necessary to return home Saturday. He is now some better than when the first attack came on.

GET THEM OUT OF POLITICS

A Writer Suggests that for this Purpose There Should be a Local Option Dispensary Law.

To the Editor of The Telegram:

For some years past the question of temperance has been more or less in politics, causing much trouble in political conventions, taking up the time of the Legislators, rising up like Banquo's ghost, before the office seeker and generally demoralizing the body politic. Under present conditions there can be no hope for a change for the better. Some years ago the Legislature enacted a law leaving the question of prohibition or license to be decided by the people themselves at an election called for the purpose alone, on an off year. This local option law, still in force, took the question out of politics, and, until the dispensary question arose, the temperance question was eliminated almost entirely from politics. It could not enter a convention nor could it, whether "spirit of health or gobbler damned," shake its "gory locks" at the timid seekers for legislative honors.

But when the dispensary ghost arose, the trouble began again. Conventions were rattled and office seekers hardly knew whether they were in possession of their own sweet souls. Now, Mr. Editor, I am not hunting for office, but it does disturb my serenity to see some of my friends now and again placed in the awkward position of having the sea on one side and the devil on the other. Moreover, the Republican party which has nothing to lose and everything to gain, is always looking out for, and ready to promote Democratic rows. In view of these facts, why should not the present Legislature pass a similar law as to the dispensary? Let the people, irrespective of party lines, have a chance in an off year to say whether they want the dispensary or license or prohibition. This takes it out of politics and is in full accord with good old Democratic doctrine that the will of the majority should be the law of the land.

"SENEX."

YOUNG WOMAN ARRESTED IN A CHURCH

She Had the Idea that She Was to Marry the Young Curate and was Stopped Only by Being Dragged Out of the Churbh by a Big Policeman.

New York Sun.

The members of Christ Episcopal Church in Elizabeth, N. J., were startled Sunday morning when a big policeman walked up to the centre isle, just before the services began, and nabbed a young woman who knelt in a pew in the centre of the church. Before the policeman entered, the congregation saw the rector, the Rev. H. H. Oberly, go to the woman and say something to her They heard her reply that she would not go out, and knew that the rector had ordered her to leave the church. Many in the congregation recognized her as Annie Arnold, a hunchback girl, 21 years old who has been a regular communicant of the church for several years. They recollected a story to the effect that she had told some of her girl friends that she was engaged to be married to one of the curates of the parish. In consequence of this the parishioners had concluded that Miss Arnold's mind had become unbalanced. They now surmised that she had come to the church for the purpose of making some sort of a public announcement concerning her infatuation for the young curate, and in the supposition a few members of the congregation left their pews and took seats near that occupied by Miss Arnold. As the rector addressed her in whispers those who tried to hear what he said were disappointed. But after she had replied that she would not go out, she added.

"You can do as you please about that, but if you cause my arrest I'll make touble."

The Rev. Mr. Oberly then went behind the chancel and sent for Sexton Miller. He told the sexton to go to police headquarters and inform the chief of police that Miss Arnold had arrived and refused to go out. Sexton Miller delivered the message and the chief of police detailed a patrolman in plain clothes to go to the church and get Miss Arnold out. The policeman was instructed to do it as quietly as possible, but to place the woman under arrest if she refused to leave the church peaceably. There are not many policemen in Elizabeth so the congregation recognized the big man when he walked in and tapped the young woman on the shoulder.

"Come," he said "if you don't go quietly, I'll drag you out."

Miss Arnold burst into tears and said she would not be disgraced in such manner. In the meantime thesermanner. In the meantime the services were being delayed. The rector told the sexton to inform the policeman that it was foolish to waste any time coaxing the girl. Then the policeman took Miss Arnold by the arm, pulled her out of the pew and led her to the door. She wept aloud and created much excitement among the congregation, but the policeman held on to her and took her to police headquarters. Several women in the congregation left the church and followed.

Miss Arnold was taken to the private office of the chief of police, where she was being questioned when the crowd of women entered and pleaded for her release. The chief told them that the Rev. Mr. Oberly had been complaining for two weeks; that she had been annoying him by ringing the doorbell at the rectory and making inquiries abuut the young curate.

She had gotten around as early as 6 'clock in the morning, the chief said, and had insisted upon being the first person to enter the church on days that the curate in question had charge of the service.

When the chief finished talking Miss Arnold declared she would marry the curate in spite of everything. Then some of the church members found Sexton Miller and begged him not to press a charge against Miss Arnold. They pleaded successfully, for after a consultation with the chief of police Sexton Miller said he would not make a complaint. A messenger had gone to Miss Arnold's home on West Jersey avenue and notified her mother. The latter hurried to police headquarters and said her daughter's arrest was an outrage. She declared that she would bring a civil action for damages against the rector and another against the curate. She was quieted by being told to take her daughter home and settle with the rector later.

WOMAN ARRESTED IN A CHURCH

After a delay of almost an hour the services in the church went on as usual. The story, however, spread through Elizabeth and before night fall the gossips had many versions. Some believed that the young woman would go back to the church on Sunday night. It was said that her mother had threatened to take her to the evening service for tne purpose of creating a scene. But Miss Arnold did not appear. Her mother, however, went to the rectory after the evening service and had a talk with Rector Oberly.

Christ Episcopal church is attended by some of Elizabeth's wealthiest citizens. The church is situated on the east side of Soctt Park—named after Gen. Winfield Scott—at the corner of East Scott place and East Jersey street.Its rector, the Rev. Mr. Oberly, was not at home when a Sun reporter called at the rectory last night, but his curate, the Rev. Mr. Nash, said he was sorry the affair had reached the newspapers.

"There is really nothing the case," he said. "The facts, however, can be briefly given. Miss Arnold is about 21 years old and hunchback. She has been an attendant at Christ church for some time, but she is apparently suffering from religious mania. For the past two weeks we have noticed that she was growing worse. She hears a sermons or reads a verse of scripture and immediately concludes that some particular thing is meant for her. She reads something about marriage and concludes that she was to marry the curate.

"She would call here at the rectory at 6 o'clock in the morning and ring the bell; she wanted to be in church at all hours. When she was there at service time she would frequently wander up to the chancel and kneel beside the priest and whisper. It finally got so annoying that the Rev. Mr. Oberly wrote a letter to her mother, telling her all of the circumstances. The rector advised her mother to have her cared for. but Mrs Arnold seemed to pay no attention to the warning. During the past two weeks Miss Arnold became so persistent that the chief of police was asked to watch her. He advised that he be notified if she gave any more trouble. So when she wouldn't go out on Sunday morning, the rector sent for a policeman. Her mother was indignant over it, but when she heard what the rector had to say on the subeot I presume she was satisfied that he did the proper thing."

Miss Arnold refused to talk about the case last night and her mother said she did not care to get into a newspaper controversy over the affair. She did say that the arrest of her daughter was unwarranted, and was proven to be when the police released the young woman at police headquarters. She added that there was more of the case to come, but that it would come through a court of law.

clear my skin, my face was in a horrible condition literally covered with red spots, pimples, blackheads, moth patches and freckles. And whenever the weather changed eczema, chap and salt rheum added to my misery. I suffered a thousand deaths, and when I sent for a trial of Mme. Ribault's beautifiers just as I had done before time and again with other advertised remedies. I did not expect any results, imagine my surprise when the next day all redness and soreness were gone. At the end of a week my skin began to clear, the freckles and moth patches disappeared and the eczema and salt rheum were completely cured. I improved so wonderfully that my friends did not recognize me, so quickly had the change taken place. My skin is now perfectly lovely, and there is not a blemish or wrinkle anywhere.

I hope all ladies will at least try these marvelous beautifiers."

MONDAY, MARCH 4

We pass to Dr. John Wilber Jenkins the assurance of proper consideration for the position he has taken against the State's squandering its money on so-called normal schools here and there, in most any locality which asks for them, and which necessarily cannot be more than local high schools. If the State desires to go into the high school and academy business, Judge Connor's efforts for so-called normal schools are just the course to put it into that business.

Asheville should have a savings bank.—Asheville Gazette.

If Asheville doesn't have a savings bank, she certainly needs one. Every town does. Ours is one of our most useful institutions.

SO-CALLED NORMALS.

It is a Mistake to Suppose that the State Can Have Local Schools of Any Use.

Raleigh Times.

A bill has been introduced in the Legislature, and is received some support, to establish a State normal school at Wilson. The people of the State generally have not taken the proposition seriously, but a delegation of prominent citizens of Wilson arrived last night to urge the matter upon the Legislature. They are doubtless moved to this from a proper local pride, for there is no town that would not like to have one of these institutions located in it. But it is inconceivable that the members of the Legislature can consent to a proposition to establish anywhere another normal school for girls.

The State Normal and Industrial College has been from the day of its opening the most sucessful education-institution in the State, and has won a place in the popular heart that has not been reached by any other State institution. Each succeeding Legislature has provided for its enlargement and extension, and its friends have been justly proud of its record. It has for years been unable to find room for the girls who want to be numbered among its students, though it now has four hundred pupils.

The establshment of a normal school in the eastern part of the State will tend to weaken this institution. which represents the entire State, and not any particular section of it. The new school could not hope to epual the present school in efficiency, even with large appropriations, for a number of years. Established as such it would always remain a local institution. We have enough fairly good schools, enough institutions of medium grade. It would necessarily be a source of great expense, as it could not do good work without good buildings and ample equipment, and these would have to be supported by yearly increasing appropriations.

We have already too much sectionalism in the State, too much of the East against the West. It is a good thing to have an institution where the best girls from all sections are gathered together, and where they learn to love and respect the people of each section. The formation of such friendship and the broader views it gives is one of the forces that tends to cement the sections closer together, and make us a more homegeneous people.

The results of dissipating our school money is shown in the record of the negro schools. A number of these were established, one in each section of the State. Few of them amount to anything, they have been inefficient and some of them have suffered from gross mismanagement. The Legislature has taken steps to abolsh a number of them, and consolidate the others. When we have such a result from the negro normals how can any one advocate the same system, even in a partial degree, for the white schools?

This is an age of concentration, in education, as well as in business. It means economy of operation, and better results. We do not believe the Legislature will pursue the inefficient and expensive policy of dissipation.

NOT ENOUGH COURT.

The Bar Meets and Passes Resolutions Regarding Twelve Weeks' Term.

At a meeting of the bar of Greensboro, held on the 1st day of March, 1901, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, we see from a publication in the Raleigh News and Observer of the 1st of March, 1901, that Guilford county, in the re-arrangement of the judicial districts of the State has been restricted to twelve weeks' of court a year, and,

Whereas, it has been manifest for many months, that such a number of weeks will not suffice to transact the business of the courts, and,

Whereas, not only the members of the bar of this county, but also the entire public are seriously inconvenienced at the present time from inability to try the causes in court, and,

Whereas, said inconvenience will continue if this county is restricted to twelve weeks, be it resolved,

First, that it is the unanimous sentiment of the members of the bar here assembled, that twelve weeks' of court a year is not sufficient for the needs of this county, and that our representatives in the Legislature be requested by every honorable means, to secure at least fourteen weeks a year for the county of Guilford, of which four terms of one week each for criminal business only, and the balance for civil business only.

Second, that a copy of these resolutions be transmitted by the secretary of this meeting to our senator and our members in the House of Representatives

CHAS. M. STEDMAN, Chairman,
A. B. KIMBALL, Secretary.

SOME QUESTIONS ASKED.

Seeking Information About Wheat, Sugar, Democracy and the Liquor Interest.

To the Editor of The Telegram:

The following squib of important news appeared in yesterday's paper. It occupied a place in a remote corner and would not have been seen, but for a notice of "Lawlessness in New Mexico" preceding it. Here is the little squib and it speaks volumes:

Valuable Property in Hawaii.

Some of the finest sugar mills in the world, costing $1,000,000 each, are found in Hawaii, and there are planters in the islands who produce $800 worth of sugar and $600 worth of rice to the acre.

I would be glad if The Telegram would investigate this matter and tell its readers why sugar is selling at 7 cents per pound and flour is selling at 2½ cents per pound? How many bushels of wheat are produced per acre on an average in the United States? What are the relative positions of flour and sugar as a necessity in the family? What is the relative cost of production per acre? Something is violently wrong with the law-making power of our government. Every effort is strained to increase the already enormous wealth of the sugar kings, while the farmers of our country are merely getting the cost of production. They are expected to produce bread at actual cost, while the sugar kings make fabulous profits on one of the necessaries of life. I hope you will take up this matter and thoroughly sift it, and let your readers know just what is going on.

There is another matter uppermost in the minds of the people of North Carolina, and it is this: Is the Democratic party drifting into the hands of the Liquor Dealers Association of North Carolina? I wish to say to you in all candor that I am a Democrat of Democrats, but the negro is out of the way now, and I will never stultify my self-respect in any manner to gratify the ambition of a little two-by-nine cross-roads politician, whose only qualification is to rant in the Legislature and turn over. root and branch, the decency of North Carolina to the liquor interests.

I am going to have more to say and I am going to call a spade a spade.

Yours,
"WOULD LIKE TO KNOW."

A WEATHER LEGEND.

"A Pound of Dust in March is Worth a Pound of Gold in Summer."

It has been said by many old students of the weather "that every year must right its self," that is, there must be a certain amount of all kinds of weather; a certain amount of dry weather, a certain amount of rainy weather, etc. In line with this, Mr. J. Van Lindley tells us that his experience has been that "every pound of dust in the month of March is worth a pound of gold to the farmers during the summer-growing season," in other words, if it be dry in March and earlier it's quite sure to right itself later on and give the tiller of the soil plenty of rain to assist the growing of his crops. So, judging by the amount of dust we are having now, the outlook for the coming season is very good.

There is probably no better judge of the matter in the country than Mr. Lindley, whose long and successful experience in the nursery business has well fitted him to be a true weather prophet.

The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are effectually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C. D. Glass, an employe of Bartlett & Dennis Co., Gardiner, Me. He says: 'jI had kept adding to a cold and cough in the winter of 1897, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help, until one day I was in the store of Mr. Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore at this time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I got a cold, and soon find relief. I also recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines." For sale by C. E. Holton.

A PRAIRIE QUEEN

"NOW'S your chance, Deronda!" cried the agent's hearty voice. When he had carried the mail bags up from the depot he had waited until their contents were distributed. That was not a long time. It never was in Excelsior. And to-night the sacks had not been of sufficient weight to tax his strong shoulders. But out of their lankness had come a surprise for him, and an opportunity for Deronda.

"I can guess. It's a letter from Uncle Donald. A check?"

Once in awhile, at Christmas always, a letter inclosing a check arrived from Donald Bertram, of New York. And his brother, who found his petty salary as station master of the insignificant Nebraska town quite incommensurate with the needs of a large and increasing family, hailed the advent of each inclosure with gratitude and elation.

"N-o. It's a letter from Donald—but there's no check." He looked across at his best loved and eldest child with a smile brighter than even the welcome check had ever summoned. "Guess again!"

She looked at him from her opposite end of the table where she presided, her mother in true western fashion still being busied at the kitchen stove until the remainder of her family had eaten. Between Deronda and her father a noisy and voracious young brood intervened—eight or ten of them. Deronda was kept busy attending to their needs. She and her mother "did" for the rest. They ate as their portion whatever was left. And neither dreamed of complaining. Labor and service were their ethics of domesticity. But now Deronda paused in her task of pouring out the numerous cups of milk.

"Father! It's good news! Keep still, Flora! What is it?"

The tidings came out in a rush. "If you will go to New York for a visit the check will follow your letter of acceptance. There!"

Deronda was the healthiest girl in town, but for the moment she felt positively weak. She set down the pitcher. The children clamored unheeded.

"O!" she gasped, "I must tell mother!"

Then she was gone, and the overworked man with the kindly face waited on the children himself.

Those that followed were exciting days. The little, straggling, low rooms over the depot were the scene of many confabulations, much scheming, many glorious hopes, innumerable pleasant prophecies. 'Ronda, as the children called her, was going away—away into some vast and mystic fairyland, which their vivid imaginations merged in the triple ecstasy of Yuletide, Heaven and the Fourth of July. But one day order was born of confusion—sobriety of hysterical anticipation. That was the day Deronda's trunk stood labeled and corded on the platform—the day Deronda's self, freshly and becomingly garbed, stood beside it. The day that Agent Bertram, and Mrs. Bertram, and all the numerous young Bertrams listened for the whistle of the train at the depot eight miles west; hung around her with growing excitement as the black column of smoke came down like the guide of those fleeing from Pharaoh, and clung around her in an adoring farewell, which was detrimental to her finery if flattering to her sensibility.

Then the iron beast was upon them. A few passengers alighted. Some express packages were handed off. These the agent mechanically received. Then Deronda's foot was on the first step of the Pullman. The engineer was looking back to see that the agent's pretty daughter got on safely before he pulled the throttle. The brakeman stood irresolute. The conductor loitered along, deferring the signal to start, because the departure of Deronda for the east was public property all along the line, and the men who had known her since she wore short dresses and waved them a welcome when their train went by were interested in this young bird-flight of hers from the overflowing family nest.

A tentative whistle quivered in the air.

"Good-by, Deronda! Have a good time!" Derond's father gave her a hard squeeze of the hand. There was the peck of a kiss between these two who loved each other so dearly.

And the train was speeding eastward.

Ah, that was a marvelous world into which Deronda went—a world where one wore dainty clothes from dawn till dawn! A world where the chief function of the women was to charm—that of the men to serve with the most exquisite courtesy. And the meed of admiration she received, when her western dresses had been discarded for beautiful gowns, was new to her. Very sweet it was, too. To be sure, she had known what it was to have young men besiege her for dances and hang upon her words. But in one case those who had given her tribute were clumsy and rough-handed country boys. The men to whom her later environment introduced her possessed that indefinable air of breeding, of culture, of distinction which can be neither bought nor acquired. And she found the melody of trained voices at the opera sweeter than the triple note of the meadow lark—the scent of hothouse roses more delicious than the perfume of wild clover.

And so, too, she discovered entrancement in the homage of Eldred Wier. Not that in his case there was the possibility of comparison. She had never been touched by the attentions of her former acquaintances. There had not been one who attracted her. When she came east she was quite heart whole and fancy free. But missiles—the gentlest of missiles—well directed, did their deadly and delicious work. Perhaps these would not have been so promptly effective, even if hurled by Dan Cupid's unerring hand, had Deronda realized that she was the bright particular star of the season. Had anyone told her that her piquant, golden-brown beauty, her unconscious air of aloofness, her repose, begotten of prairie life and placid daily duty, had won for her a higher meed of approbation than was usually accorded to a newcomer in an exclusive coterie, she would have opened her serene gray eyes wide in smiling incredulity. All the girls had admirers. Almost all the girls had lovers. But—not one of them had such a lover as Eldred Wier.

One month passed—two—three! And always there were the same tributes—always there was the same direct personal deference. Theaters, dinners, flowers, bonbons, gloves, afternoon visits, rides and drives! Always the same low, intimate tones, lingering hand-pressure, the magnetic allurement of impassioned eyes! Then suddenly it seemed—it was time to go home. Time to go back to the dull little town, to the rooms over the depot, to the horde of clamorous children.

Eldred Wier was the last to leave the Pullman. His worshiping eyes devoured the beauty of the shy, expectant face. His hand held hers in a close and tender clasp. He bent his head. He spoke in a tone that thrilled her.

"You know—you must know that I love you! You know, could I have my way, I would never let you go!"

Then the train began to move. He was gone.

Five years later there was a tremendous rush of travel westward. The Nebraska town of Wymore was one of those caught in the vortex of impetuous pleasure seekers. Although there were many health seekers, too, bound for the solacing serenity of Colorado or the golden glory of California. A splendid summer day was waning when a snorting train disgorged its myriads on the depot platform. A young man, nervous and haggard of aspect, helped an elderly woman to alight. With scant show of patience he hurried her into the waiting-room.

"I tell you I've got to leave you for awhile," he declared, testily. "I've a letter to present to one of the eastern officials of the road. His private car is due here now. I'll be back as soon as I can." Heedless of her whimpered objections he hurried off. A tall, beautiful young woman, most charmingly gowned, attracted the observation of the throng as she came down the waiting-room. She noticed the woman sitting alone, and evidently in distress.

"Can I be of service?" she inquired, pausing.

The traveler, in apparel too elaborate and youthful for her years, looked up into the gentle face of the speaker. Her wrinkled cheeks were chalky under their rouge, and her false curls and bonnet were awry.

"No," she shrilled, heedless of hearers. "No one can help me. I brought it on myself. Me, worth half a million, to go and marry that young whippersnapper, that leaves me here like a bale of goods! Not even a drink of water—"

The young woman brought her a glass of water, set straight the disordered hair and bonnet, and fanned the agitated old face, talking pleasantly the while.

"I am here," she said, "to meet my husband. He is one of the directors of the road. There—his special has just come in! He is coming this way." She rose eagerly. "There is some one with him." She took a step forward. "Welcome, Will!" as the stately man who had hastened to her side bent and kissed her.

"If it wasn't for this young lady, Eldred—" The resentful wail was cut short by a sharp exclamation. White as death Eldred Wier stared at Deronda Leighton. She looked from him to the shriveled old creature on the seat. So this was why he had never written—had never come! This was why she had fancied her heart was broken, until "a better man drew nigh!"

"Mr. Wier!" The glimmering smile in her radiant eyes maddened him. "I have been making the acquaintance of your wife." "Mr. Wier," she explained to her handsome husband, "is an old acquaintance of mine. But it is meet and part. Good-by." She swept the travelers with a graceful bow. "We really must go now, Will, dear, the carriage is waiting."—Chicago Tribune.

BLOOD

We live by our blood, and on it. We thrive or starve, as our blood is rich or poor.

There is nothing else to live on or by.

When strength is full and spirits high, we are being refreshed, bone muscle and brain, in body and mind, with continual flow of rich blood.

This is health.

When weak, in low spirits, no cheer, no spring, when rest is not rest and sleep is not sleep, we are starved; our blood is poor; there is little nutriment in it.

Back of the blood, is food, to keep the blood rich. When it fails, take Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil. It sets the whole body going again—man woman and child.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

"SIDE TRACKED."

If one of the good reports we hear of "Side-tracked," the comedy production which appears at the Academy of Music Saturday night be true, then the patrons of that place have a genuine treat in store for themselves. Press and public seem unanimous in their praise of the attraction, such statements as "The best that has been here this season," "A better pleased audience never sat in the opera house," etc., being the common report. The piece was written to amuse and entertain, and in this it never fails. Don't miss seeing this attraction.

TO PHILANTHROPIST

Monument to Be Erected in Central Park to Memory of Baron and Baroness De Hirsch.

Plans were made public the other day for a monument in Central park as a memorial of Baron and Baroness De Hirsch, who together have given $100,000,000 to the poor of the world—much of it to the poor of New York city. Everything has been arranged with the park commissioners, and President Clausen and Landscape Gardener Rose a day or two ago went over the plans with a commission from the De Hirsch association, and work will be begun at once.

The site will be near the Seventy-second street entrance on the Fifth avenue side of the park. Sculptor Bissell, who designed the Stuyvesant statue in Bowling Green and the statue of President Arthur in Madison square, furnished the design accepted.

A female figure, heroic in size, and cast in bronze, is represented as holding a tablet in her arms, on which appear the features of Baron De Hirsch and his wife in bas relief. In front of the woman's figure, representing Philanthropy, is one of a child, representing Posterity, placing a bunch of palms before the larger figure.

A pedestal of highly-polished pink granite will support the figures. The memorials cost $50,000, which will be raised wholly by voluntary subscriptions. Much of it has already been paid in.

P. Pierce Wraps a Bill Around a Stamped Card and It Goes Through.

P. Pierce of 6407 Rhodes avenue, Chicago, has unbounded confidence in the safety of Uncle Sam's postal service. To prove it he wrapped a dollar bill around a card, affixed a two-cent stamp and a bit of white paper bearing the address, and started it on its way to J. A. Wayland, a newspaper publisher of Girard, Kan. When the novel packet went through the Hyde Park postal station it attracted the attention of Superintendent Crumpacker, who delayed its transmission until he could get from Postmaster Gordon a ruling on the question of sending money through the mails in that manner.
